Dear Sir,

I have just been arranging as far as is practicable, a series of leading articles for the ‘Intercollegian’ for the forthcoming year. I am glad to learn from Mr Withycombe that you are willing to write an article for the paper, and the subject we would like you to treat is “The Reality and Efficacy of Prayer”. Will this subject suit you?

In order that you may understand the relation of this subject to the general series, it may be well that you should know what the surrounding subjects are. I should not insert your article for some months, but am writing you now in order that you may choose your time of writing it, to suit your own convenience.

The subjects I have down at present, in order (subject of course to slight alterations) are I. 1. The Incarnation; 2. Ecce Homo; 3. Ecce Deuo
II. 1. Jesus Rex; 2. Jesus Calvator
III. The Holy Spirit

IV. The reality and efficacy of prayer

V. 1. The Bible as God’s most complete revelation of Himself 2. The Bible – its indispensability for Development of Christ-like life.

The order of the earlier subjects may be considerably changed.

If the subject is congenial, I should like an article of some 4 or 5 pages, that is from 1500 to 1900 words.

My address is Clarendon College, Ballarat

Believe me, Faithfully yours

Arthur R. Crump
