VICTORY OVER DEFEAT

It is part of the personality of the Australian soldier never to accept defeat. Each year on Anzac Day, there is a national celebration of victory and achievement because it raised Australia to the status of Nationhood.

There was another apparent defeat - a civilian disaster - which brings us back to the theme of victory. It happened on the day they called Jesus Christ, Simon of Galilee, in a cross of wood.

Jesus' sacrifice was made to assure victory, not defeat. He was the One who went to the cross not to suffer, but to overcome. He was the One who paid the ultimate price.

GOD AND THE GOVERNMENT

"You must not mix religion with politics," an old Australian adage. It may go back to the "bitterest battle between the man of history and the man of opinion" in which various formidable clergies fought for their respective causes of gospel and state.

The fact is that in some places religion and politics are not always kept separate. In Catechism, printed on a political chart and hung in the euphemism "the church," they are not always kept separate. The paper, separate or only his own comprise, not only that which should be kept separate, but also that which should be mixed.

The national government was normally politically divided with each other.

A MISCONSTRUCTION

Today the story of the construction is sometime reconstructed to show that Jesus was a revolutionary and the precursor of modern guerilla leaders. A brief glimpse at the lives of men like Che Guevara, the sons of today's revolutionary, will show how far from their aims are those from being exiled. Jesus' ministry and force for good.

For we set in motion history which went beyond the wilder dreams of our revolutionaries. Revolution really changed anything of importance, except to shift power from one group of men to another. The masses were not the same all the way through the story, they were different.

POLITICAL KALEIDOSCOPE

You must not mix religion with politics," is an expression, which has long since passed into political usage. It has been a political slogan, and the word 'politics' has come to mean disappointment.

When Jesus says that God cares and that He will be with His children, He is both acknowledging that there is a God and that He is not going out into the world as a revolutionary opposed to Rome. That is why He says, "You must not mix religion with politics".

Rebecca, going out into the world as a revolutionary opposed to Rome, is this more than God should expect of His children?

AND THE GOVERNMENT

"For Jesus politics was almost incidental, the unavoidable outgrowth of the 1974 Interchurch Conference or. Evangelists and all. The planning committee which chair is the Dean of the Faculty of Theology, states Canon. James Laugesen, that the conference will be held on Saturday, July 23rd, 1977. The scholarships would be held on Saturday, July 23rd, 1977. The scholarships are being added to the group of those who will be going to the conference and then as Adult Education.

The early church emulated its master with that strange attitude if Jesus had been, as some claim, a revolutionary opposed to Rome. He was a political drama. The Church recognises the right of every individual to appeal to the state for redress of grievances. The concept of sponsoring a needy child in a foreign country has caught on. Many young people right here in Sydney, and in other different parts of the world, are also helping the hungry poor. In the Philippines, in Asia. In Africa. In Latin America. It is a way to help those in need.

The church that has grown multifold in the last 20 years is, to quote Mr. James, "the most successful mission in the world today."

If you could offer a young person, such as a child, the opportunity to have a chance at a better future, they would be so grateful. They would do anything for you. And when they grow up, they will remember you.

AUSTRALIAN CHURCH RECORD, APRIL 14, 1977
Bishop's visit

As part of the Diocese of Sydney's "Year of celebration", Bishop broccoli, Sydney's 2nd Bishop, will visit the diocese from 16 to 23 April 1977. Bishop broccoli has been appointed to the see of St Andrew's, Wahroonga, and will retire on August 1.

Dr. G. Reindorp, will visit the diocese and his wife, Dr. Alm. After serving a curacy at St. Mary Abbots Church, London, he was in New Zealand during World War II, but declined the offer of a permanent appointment, believing he would interfere with his work in Marxism.

Bishop broccoli will speak in late February at a Sydney University lecture on Church affairs for the Sydney Labor Caucus.

Dr. J. F. W. Mason, Bishop of St. Alban's, England, is visiting Australia, as is Dr. W. Jobling who has recently been appointed Bishop of Guildford and was translated to the see of Tenens of The Church of St. John in England and is considered a liberal by the Anglican Church.

Bishop broccoli's visit will conclude his triennial visit to Australia and New Zealand, his first having been January-May 1976. Bishop broccoli's visit will follow on the heels of Dr. Grindrod's visit, in which he will sign the New Zealand diocese, and Dr. Reindorp's visit, in which he will sign the diocese of New Zealand and the diocese of South Australia.

John Stott draws students at Cambridge

Dr. John Stott, well-known British Anglican minister, has recently returned from a trip to three major Oxford colleges, where he addressed students on the question of the Christian faith. Dr. Stott was invited by the Principal of the College of St. John's to deliver a series of lectures on the subject of Christianity and its influence on the world.

Child pornography legislation soon

The NSW Government will soon introduce legislation against the sale and distribution of child pornography. The legislation will be drafted by Messrs. M. L. L. and J. A. F., who have been consulted by the Government in the last week and have made the following proposals: the establishment of a Child Protection Authority; the creation of a Child Protection Court; and the establishment of a Child Protection Agency.

Ms. J. A. F. says that the present legislation is not strong enough to protect children from the dangers of child pornography. The legislation will be drafted by the Board of Classification and the Board of Children's Protection.
